Nothing Consoiling Author's6 Sense of Death from Fever.

Our old friend was yesterday notified of the fact that he was "away"—he was paying a visit to the hospital. This is the first time in the history of the hospital that the state of life of any of its inmates has been made known to the public. The patient is a gentleman of considerable consequence, and it is expected that he will be able to resume his duties on his return. He is said to be in a very critical condition, and every effort is being made to save his life. The hospital authorities have taken all possible precautions to prevent the spread of the disease. The patient is receiving the best medical attention that can be obtained. The hospital is clean and well supplied with provisions. The patients are well taken care of. The hospital is in a fair way to recover.
